NSA Naples chiefs celebrate 116 years

By NAVEUR-NAF, Commander, U.S. Sixth Fleet Public Affairs

Naples area chiefs celebrated the 116th anniversary of the chief petty officer (CPO) rank April 1 by performing colors and hosting a free cookout for junior Sailors at NSA Capodichino.

The celebration kicked off at 8 a.m. with more than 200 chiefs participating in the day's festivities, representing seven CPO messes from the Naples area.

"I think this is great representation for the chief's mess," said Senior Chief Yeoman (SW) Israel Ochoa, Jr., president of the Naples Area Chief Petty Officers Association (NACPOA). "We have really come together as a mess and we want people to know that we are here for our junior Sailors."

According to Ochoa, NACPOA's top priorities are taking care of Sailors, maintaining unit cohesiveness and reinforcing the concept that chiefs are here for everyone, including junior Sailors, officers and civilians.

The U.S. Navy established the rank of chief petty officer April 1, 1893 with a mission to provide leadership to the enlisted force and advice to Navy leadership to create combat-ready Naval Forces.

"The most important thing a Chief can impress upon their junior Sailors is that the Chief is always there for them," said Chief Yeoman (SW) Rubin Hantz. "The relationship between a Chief and their Sailors is a marriage of sorts. In good times and in bad, in sickness and health, the Chief is there for their Sailors."

Sailors needing a break may consider career intermission

By Lt. Cmdr. Elizabeth Zimmermann
Task Force Life Work

Sailors can now take a break from active Navy service, courtesy of the new Career Intermission Pilot Program (CIPP).

Approved in the Fiscal Year (FY) 2009 National Defense Authorization Act, the CIPP offers a temporary inactivation from active duty — from one to three years — for top performing Sailors. The Navy is optimistic that this measure will enhance retention in critical skill sets, while allowing greater flexibility in career paths of service members.

"Our Navy continues to look at innovative approaches to retaining our best Sailors. Finding new ways to hold on to the leaders of tomorrow is a must," said Rear Adm. Dan Holloway, director, Manpower, Personnel, Training and Education. "Our millennial generation continues to tell us they want balance between their personal and professional life. This is one tool to provide flexibility for our Sailors and to help them positively integrate life and work."

The pilot program provides an opportunity for up to 20 officers and 20 enlisted participants each year in 2009, 2010, 2011 and 2012. The CIPP will provide a one-time temporary transition for active-duty personnel to the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR). Participants will retain full active-duty Tricare health benefits for themselves and their dependents and receive a monthly stipend of one-fifteenth of their basic pay. To ease the transition, members may elect a Navy-funded permanent change of station move to anywhere in the continental United States when entering the program.

"This pilot program is for top performers who have the desire to 'Stay Navy,' but need some time off," said Holloway. "It could be for any number of reasons — to pursue a degree full-time, to take care of an ailing parent, or to start a family."

All program participants will return to active duty at the end of the period prescribed and will incur a two-to-one service obligation for every month in the program (served in addition to any previously existing obligation). Time spent in the IRR will not count toward retirement, computation of total years of commissioned service, or high-year tenure limitations.

The break in service excludes participants from promotion consideration. Upon returning to active duty, officers will have their date of rank adjusted, and enlisted members will have their active duty service date adjusted in order to be competitive with others of similar time in grade on active duty.

"We are looking at career intermission as a possible permanent part of Sailors' menu of options for a lifetime of Navy service," said Holloway. "It's just one of many flexible options we are implementing or considering as we respond to changing workforce and cultural needs."

The 'menu of options' includes ideas such as part-time work for part-time pay, more interchange between active and Reserve status and other flexible work options such as telework and compressed work schedules.

Application packages are due to Pers-4 by May 1. Selectees and alternates will be announced by the end of June. Full pilot program details can be found in OPNAVINST 1330.2, and the instruction, NAVADMIN and related information are available on the Task Force Life/Work Web site at <http://www.npc.navy.mil/command-support/taskforcelifework/>.

Captain's Corner

By Capt. Robert Rabuse
NSA Commanding Officer

Congratulations to the Chief Petty Officer community for 116 years of Pride and Tradition. While the Naval Forces Europe band played, our Senior enlisted leadership was in ranks on the spine during colors Wednesday morning to celebrate the occasion. It was very motivating and a great way to start the day.

Despite the weather we've had this week, I assure you spring is here and summer is right around the corner. With that, everyone will be outside more, enjoying the warm weather and participating in more wheeled outdoor activities. Whether you skate board, bike or roller blade, I would like to remind you that wearing a helmet is required. For those in doubt, if it has wheels and it's not a car, wear a helmet. I closed the skateboard park this week because of vandalism and lack of compliance with the rules. I don't post security at the park to enforce the rules, I shouldn't have to, it's up to the kids to do the right thing. If that's not happening, the adults nearby (not just the XO, Security or me) should remind them to get their helmets on.

Spring Break starts today and I'm sure some folks are going to take the opportunity to travel with the whole family. Whether you travel by car, train or plane, take some time to plan your adventure using TRiPS to manage your risk of incidents. Risk management is something we should all have in mind whether it is at home, on travel or at work. If you do drive, please get plenty of rest before the trip and take as many breaks as necessary during the drive. It is always better to arrive late than not at all.

NSA Naples' Environmental Management System was being reviewed this past week and as you all know, we need to reduce the impact we have on the environment especially here in Naples. Protection of the environment is everyone's responsibility, and we all play a vital role in making a positive impact. NSA Naples' focus is on reducing: the use of hazardous materials, the number of hazardous materials spills, the use of utilities such as electricity and water, and trash by recycling.

The Physical Fitness Assessment is less than eight weeks away and everyone should be ready. If you have any doubts, get over to the gym and start preparing. It's not too late, but procrastination could lead to a failing PFA score.

Navy Marine Corps Relief Society's 2009 Active Duty Fund Drive has been extended, so please find that form in your inbox and consider donating to this organization. Annually, the NMCRS gives more to Naples than we collect during the fund drive.

Have a great weekend and safe Spring Break !

Search continues for owner of diamond-filled jacket

On Monday, Police tried to find out who left a jacket with its pockets stuffed with diamonds worth €40,000 on a street in Savona, northern Italy. A woman called police saying she had noticed small transparent bags popping out from the pockets of the green jacket that was lying in the street. The woman thought the plastic bags were drugs, instead they contained small diamonds. Police are still searching for the jacket’s owner.

Bus accident caused by driver’s collapsed seat

A bus driver’s seat collapsed from under him while driving his bus through morning traffic. The driver found himself on the bus floor with his shoulder broken but was able to reach the brake pedal with his hand reducing the speed of the bus that hit a nearby wall. Passengers were shocked but no one was seriously injured. The bus was inspected last January, according to the bus maintenance company.

Naples anti-mafia police arrest 40 in connection with Casalesi clan

Carabinieri arrested 40 people in the provinces of Caserta and Naples, as well as in Milan, Ferrara and Reggio Emilia who are suspected of being involved in selling drugs and mafia-related activities. Some were part of the Casalesi clan, and the arrests were part of a wide operation by the Naples anti-mafia police who identified a group involved in trafficking drugs in Castelvoturno, Mondragone and Giugliano. Forty-five kilograms of drugs were seized with about €10,000 in stocks and cash along with rifles and machine guns. Among the people arrested was an unidentified policeman who helped the Casalesi avoid detection while they distributed drugs. The arrest of the policeman followed the one last month of four prison guards in Modena accused of helping jailed Casalesi bosses to continue running their business in Modena. The Casalesi clan is expanding from its base in Casale through northern Italian cities.

Report shows Italy’s tunnels most dangerous in Europe

According to the Automobile Club d’Italia (ACI), and road agency ANAS report, Italy’s tunnels are the most dangerous in Europe. They monitored 22 Italian tunnels saying that only one out of three met safety standards compared to eight out of ten in the rest of Europe. The lack of security is due to inefficient fire and ventilation systems, poorly identified escape tunnels, poorly managed traffic flows, missing traffic lights and insufficient management in case of emergencies. Both ACI and ANAS stated that authorities need to have a plan in monitoring the state of Italian roads and highways to better allocate funds for maintenance and investment.

Venice takes donations to save its art heritage

The campaign to help save Venice’s art heritage started last year by receiving funding from SMS (text messages) and Internet donations. The city’s main goals for this year are to repair the Rialto Bridge, and three historic churches, San Giorgio Maggiore, the Chiesa dei Gesuiti and the Scuola di San Rocco with its famed Tintoretto paintings. To contribute to the city’s maintenance fund, visit the Web site at <http://www.venezia.net> and click on a digital tile of Palazzo Ducale. The SMS campaign will hold a concert in July featuring the group “Simple Minds” in St. Mark square.

Sailors cleanup for International Earth Day

A cleanup of the Bachelor Enlisted Quarters (BEQ) at the Capodichino location at NSA Naples took place from 8 am. to noon March 20 to improve the overall quality of the facilities as part of International Earth Day. The housing department chose International Earth Day for the cleanup because it goes hand-in-hand with what this day is all about, which is raising awareness about the environment, encouraging people to appreciate the earth and also keeping it clean.

“The fact that today is International Earth Day added more meaning to the cleaning of our BEQ,” said Yeoman Chief James Donnelly, the chief resident advisor. “This was a way for our Sailors to do their part for our environment.”

Several volunteers from various commands who reside in the BEQ participated in the scheduled cleanup.

“We got as many volunteers from the commands that have Sailors who live in the barracks as possible to come and help spruce up the barracks,” said Donnelly.

According to Donnelly, over time there is wear and tear that is bound to affect a place of communal living that needs attention.

“When you have communal living, there are times where common areas get a little dirtier than normal, making it difficult for the contracted cleaners to take care of,” said Donnelly. “So we asked for volunteers to come out and give us hand.”

Aviation Structural Mechanic Airman (AW) Russell Holle disposes of trash that was picked up around the bachelor enlisted quarters March 20 at the Naval Support Activity Naples Capodichino location during a scheduled cleanup. Holle was one of the several volunteers who participated in the scheduled cleanup hosted by the housing department.

The cleaning involved a good sweeping of all of the passage ways and stair wells in the barracks, cleaning of the communal kitchens, and also picking up trash all around the BEQ area.

“I am doing my part keeping this place clean,” said Aviation Support Equipment Technician Airman Benjamin Mosley, one of the volunteers of the cleanup. “This is my residence and my house, so I am going to help keep it clean.”

According to Donnelly, not only is it important to keep the BEQ clean to help reserve the environment, it is also important that the service members who reside in the BEQ realize that it is their home and they need to take care of it.

“One of our overall goals is for all our residents to understand that they live here and we have to keep it a place where you want to come home to,” said Donnelly.

There are a lot of rules that need to be followed when living in communal housing, but they are all meant to make a healthier and easier living environment for everyone.

“If everyone pitches in by picking up their own trash, taking care of the recycling and smoking in only designated smoking areas, then it’s going to benefit everyone,” said Donnelly.

A celebration of women’s history

Story and photos by MC3 Eddie Harrison, NPASE-E Det. Europe

“I fall, I stand still... I trudge on. I gain a little... I get more eager and climb higher and begin to see the widening horizon. Every struggle is a victory,” Helen Keller, an American author, political activist and lecturer and the first deaf and blind person to earn a Bachelor of Arts degree.

Similar quotes by women in history like the one by Helen Keller were recited during a Women’s History Month celebration, hosted by the Multi-Cultural Heritage Committee at Naval Support Activity (NSA) Naples Capodichino base theater to commemorate the accomplishments of women both past and present.

“I want people to not only learn new things about women’s history but also to honor the spirit of dedication and sacrifices that women have made throughout the years,” said Multi-Cultural Heritage Committee President, Information Systems Technician 1st Class (SW) Otis Friday.

The ceremony began with a praise dance, honoring women, performed by members of the Naples Hallelujah Full Gospel Church. Following the dance, members of the committee took the stage reciting poems, monologues, and women’s quotes.

“It is a great and awesome opportunity to acknowledge not only women,” said Multi-Cultural Heritage Committee member Storekeeper 2nd Class (SW/AW) Husniyah McNeill “But to recognize these women who have contributed to our great nation.”

Naples, 'High School Musical' is a family event

Submitted by Naples Musical Entertainment Productions

"We're All In This Together," one of the most recognizable songs from the hit Disney movie "High School Musical," is now the central theme for the cast and crew of Naples Musical Entertainment (NME) Productions stage version to open in May. This theme is most evident with Courtney, Quincy, and Mykala Bazen, mom, son, and daughter, all sharing the stage together.

"Quincy was horrified when I told him that I auditioned," said Courtney recalling the audition experience in January this year. "This is the first time that I have ever done anything like this, so to be able to share this experience with my kids, who are playing pretty big roles, has been not only educational in what it takes to do a show like this, but so enjoyable. It's fun to share a hobby with your family."

Quincy Bazen (playing Ryan) responded by saying, "It was kind of weird when we first started rehearsals, because my mom was on stage and acting all crazy because that's her role (Ms. Darbus), but when I watch her perform, she brings energy and excitement to what she does which motivates me to be better. I can't let her steal the show," laughed Quincy.

Inside sources from the production have hinted that the youngest Bazen, Mykala has impressed the production team with her ability to learn complex choreography as one of the elite cheerleaders and that her gymnastics skills will be featured in the show.

Additionally, Ciera MacIsaac who plays the role of "Kelsie" expressed the same feelings as Quincy Bazen when she found out that her father, Lt. James MacIsaac was cast as "Coach Bolton," the lead male's on-stage father.

"Oh my gosh, I was so embarrassed," said Ciera of her dad as she recalls the first few rehearsals and watching her father become his character. "I'm still totally embarrassed, but that's because he's my dad, but I think every one else is going to think he is awesome. He really is Coach Bolton when he hits the stage; it's scary."

Assistant Director Christina Velarde said, "We are so fortunate that we have such wonderful talent in the community, but more so, we consider ourselves very lucky to have the family element in our production. Navy Marine Corps Relief Society fund raiser kicked off

By MCSA Kristopher Regan, NPASE-E Det. Europe

Naval Support Activity Naples kicked off their 2009 Navy Marine Corps Relief Society (NMCRS) Fund Drive March 2 and will continue until April 7 to help raise money for the charity organizations that they support.

The NMCRS is a non-profit organization. Their mission is to provide, in partnership with the Navy and Marine Corps, financial, educational, and other assistance to members of the Naval services of the United States, eligible family members, and survivors when in need; and to receive and manage funds to administer these programs.

According to Culinary Specialist Senior Chief Devon Knight, the activity chairperson for the Naples area NMCRS, each tenant command in the Naples area has assigned a key person who is responsible for the solicitation and submission of all fundraising. "However, everyone should get involved and help where they can," said Knight.

The goal for this years drive is to replenish some of the funds that were used in the past year.

"In 2008, the Naples Area contributed over $1,600 in interest free loans and grants. The goal for this year is to exceed the amount which was depleted last year," said Knight.

Personnel Specialist Petty Officer 1st Class Rose M. Olivo, one of the treasurers of this year's drive, recalled the time early on in her career when she herself had to use this charity.

"My car broke down and we needed money to fix it in order to get to and from work, so I went to the NMCRS and got an interest free loan," said Olivo. "That is why I always preach that it is so important to donate, because you never know when you're going to need assistance like that, and they have never turned me down."

There are many ways that service members can help out and do their part for this fund drive.

"One way to help is to get in touch with the NMCSR representative person from your command and make your pledges to the NMCRS as soon as possible," said Knight.

For more information about NMCRS or the fund raiser, contact Senior Chief Knight by calling 081-568-4338.

Managing credit scores

By MC2 (AW) Chris Henry, NPASE-E Det. Europe

The Fleet and Family Support Center (FFSC), Naval Support Activity, Naples is offering a free financial tool to help service members understand and manage their credit score. BrightScore is an interactive online application that helps consumers understand the details of their credit report and the impact their credit score has on their life. BrightScore normally costs $24.95, but the service is free for service members and their spouses when they schedule an appointment with a financial counselor at the FFSC or their command financial specialist.

"BrightScore is unique in how it breaks down your credit report into its various components and explains how different credit report items have impacted your score," said Ryan Ritter, financial counselor at FFSC Naples. "Your credit score is provided and BrightScore shows how many points of your credit score have been lost or gained for each component of your score and why."

According to Ritter, life costs less with a good credit. Credit scores affect everyone regardless of age, rank or financial status. A person's credit score determines the interest rate they receive on loans.

"When buying a home for example, a 1.59 percent difference on a $200,000 home loan can cost $77,000 in additional interest on a 30 year mortgage," said Ritter. "Your car loans, college education loans, and health insurance will cost less; your utility deposits will even be lower. You will not be barred from better jobs or disallowed higher security clearances for having good credit."

Financial counselor Connie McLean at the FFSC Naples encourages service members to utilize the BrightScore program with a financial counselor at the FFSC. "Reviewing your credit report and score components with a trained financial counselor can be the difference in knowing you have a problem and knowing how to fix the problems," said McLean.

The financial experts at FFSC explained that anyone can benefit from managing their credit score.

"Understanding how your financial actions change your credit score is important for everyone," said Ritter. "When the time comes for your credit to meet the test, 'I didn't know' won't be enough."

For more information on the BrightScore program contact the FFSC command financial counselors at 081-811-6372 or visit <http://www.brightscore.com>.

In Memory of Aldo D'Ambrosio

Aldo D'Ambrosio passed away March 21 in Naples following several weeks of hospitalization. D'Ambrosio was a native Neapolitan, born in 1950, and began his nearly 35 years of service to the NSA Naples community in 1974 as a Shipment Clerk (UA-06) in the supply department. He progressed in NSA through the years to his recent position of Supervisory Transportation Specialist (UA-01) in 2002. D'Ambrosio's years of experience and leadership in the areas of customs and water freight traffic management had earned him the deepest respect from a host of logistics professionals throughout Italy and Europe. His dedicated service, kind demeanor, and patience made him a trusted friend of many people for whom he did so much. D'Ambrosio will be dearly missed. He is survived by his wife Ornella Guarnieri.

Deputy Supreme Allied Commander Transformation Adm. Luciano Zappata visits Joint Force Command

By Chief Petty Officer
Chris Emes (GBR N)
JFC Naples Public Affairs Office

Commander Joint Force Command Naples, Adm. Mark Fitzgerald hosted Admiral Luciano Zappata, Italian Navy, Deputy Supreme Allied Commander Transformation March 30 at JFC.

Headquarters Supreme Allied Commander Transformation, located in Norfolk, Va., is the headquarters of NATO’s Su-preme Allied Commander Transformation (SACT), and houses the command structure of Allied Command Transformation.

Consistent with North Atlantic Council priorities and objectives, the headquarters’ function is to: provide the conceptual framework for the conduct of future combined joint operations; define how future operations will be conducted and the capabilities they will need; and take new operational concepts, from others or self-generated, assesses their viability and value, and bring them to maturity through doctrine development, scientific research, experimentation and technological development. It implements both by persuading nations individually and collectively to acquire the capability, and provides the education and training, enabling the concepts to be implemented by NATO forces.

Master Chief Petty Officer (SW/AW/NAC) Bradley N. LeVault assumed duties March 30 as the Commander, U.S. Naval Forces Europe – Commander, U.S. Naval Forces Africa (NAVEUR-NAF) Fleet Master Chief at Allied Joint Forces Command in Naples, Italy. LeVault relieved Fleet Master Chief Anthony B. Evangelista, who had been at NAVEUR-NAF for four years.

“This is my fourth overseas tour,” said LeVault. “I have a great deal of experience to bring to the fight, and I’m ready to lead Sailors in this area of responsibility.”

Some of LeVault’s previous assignments include company commander at Recruit Training Command in Orlando, Fla.; leading chief petty officer at Recruit Training Command in Great Lakes, Ill.; and instructor at the U.S. Army Sergeants Major Academy in El Paso, Texas.

LeVault is a graduate of the U.S. Army Sergeants Major Academy and earned his master’s degree in national security and strategic studies at the Naval War College, Newport, R.I.

Much of LeVault’s training comes from an Army construct that relies heavily on the Noncommissioned Officers Corps (NCO), which are enlisted personnel in the pay grade of E-5 through E-9.

“My primary focus begins with the Chief’s Mess and extends to the entire NCO Corps,” said LeVault. “I specifically include E5 and E6 Sailors as they represent the majority of the enlisted leadership, and I include them just as much as the Chief’s Mess in being responsible for mission accomplishment — developing Sailors and caring for our families.”

JFC bids farewell to Swiss representative

Adm. Mark Fitzgerald, commander Allied Joint Force Command Naples, meets with Lt. Col. Urs Bachmann, senior national representative Switzerland March 18 in order to thank him for his hard work and dedication. Bachmann, who was the first Swiss officer at JFC Naples, will leave Naples and return to Switzerland this summer. Since 2006, he has been responsible for the evaluation of Partnership for Peace (PfP) troops and helped partner nations achieve the standards of NATO interoperability. Switzerland is a PfP nation and voluntarily sent Bachmann to Naples. Switzerland is also one of the non-NATO troop contributing countries to the NATO Kosovo Force, KFOR.

Naples Health Awareness Update

Submitted by CNREURAFSWA Public Affairs

In an effort to familiarize everyone with the Naples Public Health Evaluation (PHE), we are providing weekly updates on various aspects of the PHE, such as terms used, chemicals analyzed and general updates on the project. In recent articles, we've discussed active soil gas sampling and vapor intrusion. This week we are providing an introduction to arsenic, one of the many chemicals being tested for in the PHE.

• PHASE II NEEDS YOU

The Navy needs more homes to sample as part of Phase II of the Naples Public Health Evaluation (PHE). Navy technicians are looking for additional homes in eight out of the nine PHE study areas, and they especially need more homes in Study Areas 2 (Downtown Naples), 3, 7 and 9 (listed below) to complete sampling. The collection of tap water and/or soil samples from your home takes no more than two hours.

It's easy to sign up. Simply e-mail us your name, phone number and e-mail address to napleshealth@eu.navy.mil and one of the project team members will get back to you for more information.

NSA Naples energy conservation

By UT1 (SCW) Paul J. Kuntz, NSA Naples Energy Manager

Ranges and ovens

1. Reduce the heat. Begin cooking on a higher heat setting until liquid begins to boil. Then, lower the temperature and simmer the food until fully cooked. A fast boil doesn't cook faster than a slow boil, but it does use more energy.
2. Don't peek in the oven. Resist the urge to open the oven door while baking. Every time you peek, the temperature drops 25° F and requires additional energy to bring the temperature back up.
3. Use retained heat. Turn off cook tops or ovens a few minutes before food has completed cooking. Retained heat finishes the job using less energy.
4. Consider a natural gas range or oven. Natural gas appliances cost less to operate than electric appliances and offer better temperature control.
5. Put a lid on it. Cook food and boil water in a covered container whenever possible. This traps the heat inside and requires less energy.
6. Make sure the oven seals tightly. Make sure the seal on the oven door is tight. Even a small gap allows heat to escape and wastes energy. If a dollar bill can be moved through the closed door, the seal is not tight enough and should be replaced.
7. Check the oven temperature. Test the oven temperature to be sure that the setting matches the actual temperature. If the actual temperature is too high, it will use more energy than needed and food may not turn out as anticipated.

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS

Your home is a great shelter either on base or off.

In the event of many emergencies, your home can serve as your primary shelter. A power outage, earthquake, work disruption, etc. may require reduced base access. Be prepared to care for your family for a minimum of three days (seven is better) with at least these five basics:

Water: Minimum one gallon (four Liters) per person per day

Food: and a means to cook it (BBQ is one possibility). Don't forget a can-opener.

Heat: Warm clothing, blankets, sleeping bags, non-electric heaters, etc. Check your camping equipment as one resource.

Money: ATM's may be down, but stores may be open.

Radio: Battery, solar or hand crank powered for news, updates and emergency directions.

• PUSH, PG-13, for intense sequences of violence and action, brief strong language, smoking a scene of teen drinking. Drama, Science Fiction/Fantasy and Thriller, 111 min. Cast: Chris Evans, Dakota Fanning, Camilla Belle, Cliff Curtis and Djimon Hounsou. The Division, a shadowy government agency, is genetically transforming citizens into an army of psychic warriors--and brutally disposing of those unwilling to participate. Nick Gant, a second-generation telekinetic or "mover," has been in hiding since the Division murdered his father more than a decade earlier. He has found sanctuary in densely populated Hong Kong--the last safe place on earth for fugitive psychics like him--but only if he can keep his gift a secret. Nick is forced out of hiding when Cassie Holmes, a 13-year-old clairvoyant or "watcher," seeks his help in finding Kira, an escaped "pusher" who may hold the key to ending the Division's program. Pushers possess the most dangerous of all psychic powers: the ability to influence others' actions by implanting thoughts in their minds. But Cassie's presence soon attracts the attention of the Division's human bloodhounds, forcing Nick and Cassie to flee for their lives. With the help of a team of rogue psychics, the unlikely duo traverses the seedy underbelly of the city, trying to stay one step ahead of the authorities as they search for Kira. But they find themselves square in the crosshairs of Division Agent Henry Carver, a pusher who will stop at nothing to keep them from achieving their goal.

While Rebecca has dreams of working for a top fashion magazine, she can't quite get her foot in the door - that is, until she snags a job as an advice columnist for a new financial magazine published by the same company. Overnight, her column becomes hugely popular, turning her into an overnight celebrity, but when her compulsive shopping and growing debt issues threaten to destroy her love life and derail her career, she struggles to keep it all from spiraling out of control--and is ultimately forced to reevaluate what's really important in life.

• MONSTERS VS. ALIENS, PG, for sci-fi action, some crude humor and mild language, Action/Adventure, Comedy and Animation, 94 min. Cast: Reese

When California girl Susan Murphy is unwittingly clobbered by a meteor full of outer space gunk on her wedding day, she mysteriously grows to 49-feet-11-inches tall. Alerted to the threat of this new monster, the military jumps into action and Susan is captured and secreted away to a covert government compound. There, she is renamed Ginormica and placed in confinement with a ragtag group of other monsters: the brilliant but insect-headed Dr. Cockroach, Ph.D.; the macho half-ape, half-fish The Missing Link; the gelatinous and indestructible B.O.B.; and the 350-foot grub called Insectosaurus. Their confinement is cut short, however, when a mysterious alien robot lands on Earth and begins storming the country. In a moment of desperation, The President is persuaded by General W.R. Monger to enlist the motley crew of Monsters to combat the Alien Robot and save the world from imminent destruction.

• THE PINK PANTHER 2, PG, for some suggestive humor, brief mild language and action, Comedy, Thriller, Crime/Gangster and Sequel, 92 min. Mann and Vanessa Ferlito. After a high-speed freeway chase puts Madea in front of the judge, her reprieve is short-lived as anger management issues get the best of her and land her in jail. A gleeful Joe couldn't be happier at Madea's misfortune. But Madea's eccentric family members the Browns rally behind her, lending their special "country" brand of support. Meanwhile, Assistant District Attorney Joshua Hardaway is on the fast track to career success. But Hardaway lands a case too personal to handle - defending young prostitute and former drug addict Candace Washington - and asks his fiancée and fellow ADA Linda Holmes to fill in on his behalf. When Candace ends up in jail, Madea befriends the young woman, protecting her in a "motherly" way as only Madea can.

WOMEN'S HISTORY

The ceremony continued with a slideshow, with which the achievements of women such as Hillary Clinton, the first, First Lady ever elected to the U.S. Senate and Sally Kristen Ride, the first American woman to reach outer space, were recognized. The ceremony was concluded with a musical piece addressed to all women.

"I think events like these are very enlightening," said audience member Information Systems Technician 1st Class (SW) Christopher Cookson. "People should get out and see events like these more often. These events will broaden people's horizon."

According to National Women's History Project, as early as the 1970's women's history was an unknown topic in the K-12 curriculum. In order to address this situation, the Education Task Force of the Sonoma County Commission on the Status of Women, in California, initiated a "Women's History Week" celebration in 1978.

In 1981 a Congressional Resolution was formed, declaring a National Women's History Week. Within a few years, thousands of schools and communities were celebrating National Women's History Week, supported and encouraged by resolutions from governors, city councils, school boards, and the U.S. Congress.

In 1987, the National Women's History Project petitioned Congress to expand the national celebration to the entire month of March. Since then, the National Women's History Month resolution has been approved with bipartisan support in both the House and Senate, making March, National Women's History Month.

USS Klakring (FFG 42) completed a scheduled port visit March 27 in Sevastopol, Ukraine with a luncheon and reception held on board her flight deck and hosted by the United States Ambassador to Ukraine, the Honorable William Taylor.

The visit to the Black Sea port city strengthened the partnership between these two countries and was intended to help maintain regional maritime stability and security, a vital component of the Chief of Naval Operations (CNO) Maritime Strategy.

Beginning with a tour for the ambassador and several senior members of the Ukrainian Navy, the ship hosted the luncheon, an award ceremony, and an evening reception where the Ambassador Taylor and Ukraine Chief of Naval Operations, Vice Adm. Ihor Tenyukh, discussed his country's hopes for expanding the Ukraine Navy.

During the awards ceremony, the ambassador presented Enlisted Surface Warfare Specialist (ESWS) pins to Information Systems Technician 1st Class Raymond Doyle and Cryptologic Technician 2nd Class (AW) Richard Howell, and the Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal to Operations Specialist 3rd Class Timothy Tingle.

For Howell, a Richmond, Virginia native, receiving his pin was the reward for months of hard work. "It was nice to be recognized, [especially] with the ambassador presenting the awards in front of our divisions," he said. "I am just thrilled."

Klakring is on a six-month deployment. She is assigned to Commander, Destroyer Squadron Fourteen, based out of Mayport, Fla.

Navy stabilizes force as it nears end-strength goal, admiral says

By Gerry J. Gilmore
American Forces Press Service

After years of downsizing, the U.S. Navy has nearly achieved its end-strength goal of 329,000 Sailors, a senior naval officer said March 20.

"For the Navy, force stabilization marks a transitional period, where we are now finished downsizing," Rear Adm. Daniel P. Holloway, director of the Navy's military personnel, plans and policy division, told Pentagon Channel and American Forces Press Service reporters.

The Navy has been reducing its ranks by 8,000 to 10,000 service members a year for the past six to seven years, Holloway said, noting his service now is close to reaching its designed end-strength goal of about 329,000 sailors.

"We're currently halfway through the fiscal year within 1 percent of that goal in stabilizing the force," said Holloway, a two-star admiral.

And, as the Navy stabilizes its force, he said, it wants to recruit and retain only the best and brightest Sailors to support the nation's maritime strategy and the joint warfighter.

Holloway said he hears positive feedback about today's "excellent" Sailors. The Navy's Perform-to-Serve program that's been in place for years, he said, evaluates sailors' duty performance to ascertain their capability for continued service.

Qualified sailors also may have the opportunity to switch to high-demand jobs at re-enlistment time, Holloway said. Today's sailors are serving in Afghanistan and Iraq, he said, as members of provincial reconstruction teams and improvised explosive device suppression crews, with civil affairs groups, and in security and detention operations.

"We're getting a record number of volunteers now" to fill such billets, Holloway said, adding that he's hearing "that the Army and Marine Corps" appreciate the Sailors' contributions.

The Navy employs two types of assignment categories while providing Sailors to serve in overseas slots, Holloway said. The individual augmentee process, he said, is used to fill positions on a very short notice.

Global war on terrorism support assignments are known by the acronym GSA, Holloway said. They involve "predictable" overseas assignments of a year's duration, he said, that would be repetitively filled.

Holloway said the Navy can look in advance at the requirement for GSA-system sourced assignments, while assignment managers scan the force to see who'd be ready to deploy after completion of their present assignment.

Detailers don't pull Sailors out of their present duty assignments when filling GSA billets, he noted, which results in less disruption to Sailors' lives.

Meanwhile, Holloway said, the Navy continues to attract high-quality recruits.

"We are a world-class outfit and we do require world-class performance," Holloway said. "So, the standards are high."

Illegally in Italy with expired sojourner's permit

Submitted by Region Legal Service Office Europe/Southwest Asia

Those who let their sojourner's permit expire may be paying out of pocket to fly back to the States to apply for a new visa. After applying, it could take weeks for the visa to be granted. People can avoid this expensive trip by applying for a sojourner's permit or renewal of an expired permit in a timely manner.

In order to enter Italy and stay for longer than 90 days, all members of the civilian component and all dependents of members of both the civilian component and the military must obtain a mission visa. Then, within eight days of entering Italy, the individual must apply for a sojourner's permit at U.S. Region Legal Service Office Europe and Southwest Asia (RLSO EUR-SWA). Anyone who will remain in Italy beyond the expiration of the sojourner's permit, usually due to a tour extension or back-to-back tours, must apply to renew the permit within 60 days of its expiration.

There has been an unfortunate trend in individuals failing to apply for a sojourner's permit or failing to apply for a renewal of the sojourner's permit within the 60-day grace period. This has come to light due to the number of individuals who have been denied on-base employment for failure to have a current sojourner's permit. Those individuals may not be employed on base and may not remain in Italy legally. In order to legalize their stay in Italy, many of them are required to depart the country, apply for a new mission visa in the United States, re-enter Italy after obtaining the new visa, and apply for a sojourner's permit within eight days of re-entry. This requirement can impose significant stress and financial hardship upon families who are required to fly back to the United States and find lodging while awaiting new visas.

Don't put yourself and your family in this situation. Check your sojourner's permits now. If they aren't current, call RLSO EUR-SWA at 081-568-4576 to schedule an appointment.

NHS TEAMS GO UNDEFEATED IN BASEBALL, SOFTBALL SEASON OPENER GAMES

Naples High School (NHS) hosted the season’s first games of Southern Italy DoDDS baseball and softball teams last weekend at Carney Park. DoDDS is now providing the coaching staff and equipment for the ball teams at NHS. The teams will also compete against other DoDDS teams in Italy and play in the championships in Germany in late May. Both the Wildcats and Lady ‘Cats had split double headers against the Vicenza Cougars and the Aviano Saints. The Naples teams asserted their dominance on the ball fields with clear victories against their opponents.

Wildcats undefeated with clear wins

By Ken Taylor

The Naples Nine were the cream of the crop during the inaugural weekend of DoDDS baseball in Italy at Carney Park. The boys’ baseball teams from Sigonella, Vicenza, and Aviano journeyed to Naples for season-opening of high school baseball, with each team playing two games under blue Neapolitan skies.

Coach Duke Marlow’s Wildcats beat the Cougars of Vicenza 9-4 in last Friday’s first matchup, holding off a final inning Cougar comeback. The Wildcats had eight hits and no errors to the Cougars five hits, five errors. Winning pitcher for the Wildcats was junior Logan Porchie who struck out three in the three innings he pitched. He was relieved by senior Shea Goodnature who struck out seven more in three innings, followed by junior Fletcher Taylor who fanned one in the final stanza. Porchie, playing at catcher, sealed his pitching win in the seventh with a heads-up play to nab two Vicenza base runners for the final outs. Leading batsmen for Naples were senior Ethan Porchie with two singles along with Goodnature and senior Brock Kalnasy, each with a double.

Naples rocked the Aviano Saints 12-3 in the Saturday opener, putting the game out of reach with an eight run explosion in the third. Logan was again the starting and winning pitcher, going four innings to notch seven strikeouts. Goodnature earned the save in short relief. Kalnasy slugged another double and a single, while Goodnature also ripped his second double of the weekend. Taylor contributed two singles.

Lady ‘Cats dominate fastpitch softball

By Tony Davis

The women of Aviano, Naples, Sigonella and Vicenza met in the Carney Park crater to play the first ever Southern Europe DoDDS High School girls’ fastpitch softball games. Coaches Cynda Masterman and Pat Ward, assisted by Tony Davis and Joe Ybarra, were pleased to see their Lady Cats team perform so well in their first competition of the season as they went undefeated in all their games. Aviano claimed a victory against Sigonella which lost both their games last weekend.

The Lady ‘Cats trounced the Cougars (17-1) in last Friday’s game. Starting the rout against Vicenza was shortstop, sophomore Caitlyn Eckert who scored three runs during the game. The junior pitching pair of Ashley Travis and Clara Davis led the Wildcats in their victories making 19 of the 27 outs in nine innings with a combined 12 strikeouts and seven putouts with a total of one earned run. These juniors also stroked two hits a piece during the game. Freshman Alley Ward had the most hits, three, with senior Tori Ward and freshman Shannon Walsh each connecting on two pitches. Junior Taylor Alderson and freshman Tani Dominguez stepped up to take the place of two ineligible and one injured key starters with errorless defense against the Cougars and Saints. The team explored the depth of their bench and all players contributed to the team victories.

The Lady ‘Cats continued their flawless play and asserted their dominance in last Saturday’s game against the Saints (11-6). Davis pitched the entire game with five strikeouts and also went two for four with a double at bat. Tori, Alley and sophomore Ann Marie Colon provided multiple hits to keep the runs coming in.

The teams will not have any games over spring break, April 3-12, but will be traveling to Sigonella for an April 18 game. The Wildcats will have baseball and softball games at Carney Park and track meets at the NHS athletic field the week of April 25.

NHS Students perform well at European Junior Science and Humanities Symposium

Submitted by Naples High School

Naples high school junior Sarah Huff and sophomore Nejla Lougen presented their science research projects February 23-25 at the European Junior Science and Humanities Symposium (JSHS) regional competition in Reidstadt, Germany. The JSHS Program promotes original research and experimentation in the sciences, engineering, technology, and mathematics (STEM) at the high school level and publicly recognizes students for outstanding achievement. JSHS aims to widen the pool of trained talent prepared to conduct research and development vital to our nation by connecting talented students, their teachers, and research professionals at affiliated symposia and rewarding research excellence.

The judges for the competition were Dr. John Parmentola, director for Research and Laboratory Management for the U.S. Army, Dr. Barrett Flake, European Office of Aerospace Research and Development, Dr. Christian Pfaff, Fraunhofer Institute and Dr. David Klindienienst, chair of Regional Directors Executive Council for National JSHS.

Thirty students, representing 19 DoDDs-Europe middle and high schools attended the event featuring posters or oral presentations. Huff and Lougen qualified for the Senior oral presentations with 12 other students. Huff’s project consisted of investigation of strain resistant bacteria for which she received a third place award, $1000 scholarship and a trip to compete at the National JSHS Competition in Colorado Springs at the end of April. Lougen’s project was an investigation into alternative electrical power sources of solar and wind as applied to the Naples area requirements. Both students received excellent comments from the judges, mentors and students in attendance.

Student mentor, Candace Scott said, “I was incredibly proud of their presentations and defense to a panel of such heavy weights in the science industry.”

It was not all work and no play over the three days. One evening included a round table discussion led by one of the judges or special guest scientists, such as Dr. Anthony Junior of the Office of Naval Research. There was also a science games night where student groups competed to win several events using creativity and science know-how. Students were treated to several field trips before awards were presented on the last day.

“We went to Merck Chemical and Pharmaceutical plant in Darmstadt,” said Huff “It was interesting to visit this international giant and learn about the research work they conduct in addition to their manufacturing.”
